

Gen Li is a PhD student at Multiscale Mechanics and Nanotechnology Laboratory in University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC), where Gen Li research and investigate the process of hydroentanglement theoretically, numerically and experimentally.

Gen Li has worked as both research assistant and teaching assistant in UIC and now three journal papers have been published in Polymer related to the research of hydroentanglement. Recently, Gen Li win the Faydor Litvin Graduate Award which is given to continuing students in recognition of scholarly achievement and service to the department and graduate student community.

Gen Li is a dog/cat lover and video game player in his daily life. Gen Li is also a member of ASHRAE, UIC chapter. Please email gli35@uic.edu or go to <https://mmnl.lab.uic.edu/> or <https://www.linkedin.com/in/gen-li-95a306127/> to contact Gen Li.